

How Can you Meet the Goal of a Diverse Workforce when Retaining and Growing Talent within your Organization Poses Challenges as Diverse as the Workforce you seek to Create?

Diversity and inclusion specialists are as challenged today as ever. Expanding the focus from recruitment to retention and sponsorship, and from form to substance, we still face significant roadblocks to full participation.

For corporate employees of color, one of those roadblocks can be unfamiliarity with the corporate environment, its unstated rules, complex dynamics and assumptions made about people of color that are rooted more in myth than in experience.

Arm your diverse workers with the resources and guidance to successfully navigate your company's unique environment, with a career coach who can truly relate to the employee of color and deeply understand their perspectives and experiences.

I offer personalized career counseling services, with a special emphasis on communities of color, aimed at taking my client's game to the next level.

Through over thirty years of working for and in large corporate employers, I have developed extensive experience in deciphering power dynamics, building strategic alliances and growing career-enhancing skills. As a former Senior Vice President of a Fortune 10 corporation, I climbed the ladder of a multi-billion dollar behemoth and thrived through its many acquisitions, reorganizations, leadership changes and market transformations.

Let me help you create the diverse workforce you need, by helping your diverse workers succeed.
